AI Agent Business Overview

What each agent does, how it works, and what it takes to configure

- Leave and Absence Policy Advisor
- Leave and Absence Analyst
- Leave and Absence Analyst (My Team)
- Payroll Run Analyst
- Data Loader Advisor (HDL/HSDL)
- Onboarding Journey + Onboarding Assistant

Agent 1 — Leave and Absence Policy Advisor

"HR stops being a walking of FAQ."

The problem: HR frequently gets the same policy questions — parental leave, bereavement leave, FMLA, required documents — and different HR reps sometimes give different answers, which creates compliance risk.

The fix: employees ask the agent directly, in plain language, and gets the same policy-backed answer every time, sourced from the company's actual leave policy documents — not a person's memory of the policy.

How it works

Am I eligible for FMLA if I've only been here 8 months?

Not yet — FMLA requires 12 months of employment and 1,250 hours worked in the past year. You may qualify for personal leave instead.
Source: Leave Policy Handbook, Sec. 4.2

Can I take bereavement leave for my spouse's grandparent?

Yes — the policy covers extended family through marriage, up to 3 paid days. Source: Leave Policy Handbook, Sec. 6.1

Business value

- One consistent, compliant answer every time — removes rep-to-rep variance in policy interpretation.
- Employees get instant answers 24/7 instead of waiting for an HR reply.
- Frees HR from repetitive FAQ-style tickets to focus on higher-value work.
- Every answer is traceable to a source document — useful for audit and compliance review.

Configuration snapshot

Feasibility	Native Oracle agent template — no custom build required
Effort to stand up	Config only — roughly 1–2 weeks
What we do	Copy the prebuilt template in AI Agent Studio, upload our leave policy documents as the knowledge source, publish, and assign to the right roles
Ongoing maintenance	Update the uploaded policy documents whenever leave policy changes

Sample questions, it already handles: "I'm still on probation, can I take unpaid leave?" · "What documents do I need for intermittent FMLA?" · "How much notice do I need to give for military leave?"

Leave and Absence Policy Advisor Test1

My manager is on leave — who approves my time-off request?

If your manager is on leave, your time-off request will be approved by the Department Head. If the Department Head is also unavailable, the approval responsibility moves to the HR Manager. Additionally, your manager should have designated a delegate for approving leave during their absence, and this delegate is recorded in the Portal to ensure your request is handled without delay. So, your request will be approved by either the designated delegate, the Department Head, or the HR Manager depending on who is available.

Sources (3)

Can I get fired for one unauthorized absence?

You cannot be fired for just one unauthorized absence. The company's policy takes a progressive approach, starting with verbal warnings for initial violations. Termination is only considered after repeated violations, serious misconduct, or if there is a prolonged unauthorized absence of three or more consecutive working days, which might be treated as job abandonment. This process ensures you have opportunities to address any issues before facing severe consequences.

Leave and Absence Policy Advisor

The Leave and Absence Policy Advisor looks up your company's leave policies and helps employees request leave.

Absence Type

Required

After you select an absence type, you can enter the details of your absence here.

Leave and Absence Policy Advisor Test1

How many days in advance do I need to request a week off?

You need to request a week off at least 15 working days in advance. This advance notice helps ensure your request can be reviewed and approved smoothly, minimizing any disruption to your team's workflow. If you have any other questions about the leave process, feel free to ask!

Can my manager deny my sick leave?

Your manager can deny your sick leave request only if there is a genuine, documented operational conflict. If this happens, they must provide a clear written reason and suggest alternatives if possible. For sick leave lasting 3 or more days, a medical certificate reviewed by HR is required. If your request is denied, you can ask for a review by the Department Head or HR. The company ensures that decisions about leave are made fairly and transparently.

Who approves unpaid leave — is it different from regular leave?

Unpaid leave requires joint approval from both your Department Head and the HR Manager, which is different from regular leave that is usually approved by your Direct Manager or Department Head alone. This means unpaid leave requests undergo a more thorough review to balance business needs and employee considerations. It's important to submit your unpaid leave request well in advance, typically at least 30 working days before the intended leave, to allow enough time for proper evaluation and approval. If you have any more questions or need help with the process, feel free to ask!

Ask Oracle

Agent 2 — Leave and Absence Analyst

"Ask for what you want, get it done."

The problem: Oracle HCM already has self-service leave tools, but most employees don't use them well because balances, PTO donation, and cash-out are buried several menus deep. People end up messaging HR or their manager instead.

The fix: employees just ask in plain language, and the agent gives the answer and takes them straight to the right screen or action — no menu-hunting.

How it works

	How many sick hours do I have ?
You have 62 sick hours available as of today.
	Can I donate 16 hours to a coworker on medical leave?
Yes, that's within the donation limit. I've opened the donation screen for you to confirm the 16 hours.

Business value

- Drives adoption of self-service features that already exist but go unused today.
- Cuts out the back-and-forth of employees messaging HR or their manager for routine requests.
- Reduces friction on PTO donation and cash-out — features with real employee value that are underused purely because of navigation complexity.

Configuration snapshot

Feasibility	Native Oracle agent — preconfigured, ready to use immediately
Effort to stand up	Near-zero — no setup or configuration required out of the box
What we do	Enable the agent for the relevant roles and confirm data-access/privilege alignment
Ongoing maintenance	None required beyond standard role/security upkeep

Example questions - it already handles: "Set up vacation for the second week of September" · "What absences have I taken so far this year?" · "Am I entitled to any parental leave?"

Agent 3 – Leave and Absence Analyst (My Team)

"See the full picture before you click approve."

The problem: managers approve leave requests without knowing the bigger picture – whether three people are already out that same week, or whether the requester even qualifies for the leave type. That's how teams end up short-staffed during a launch or peak period.

The fix: managers get instant team-wide visibility before approving, and can even submit a request on behalf of someone who can't do it themselves.

How it works

Business value

- Prevents avoidable short-staffing during critical business periods by surfacing overlap before approval, not after.
- Confirms leave-type eligibility automatically, reducing incorrect approvals.
- Lets managers act on behalf of employees in genuine hardship situations without a manual workaround.

Configuration snapshot

Feasibility	Native Oracle agent template – the manager-facing counterpart to Agent 2
Effort to stand up	Config only – roughly 1–2 weeks

Ongoing maintenance	None beyond standard role/security upkeep

Agent 4 – Payroll Run Analyst

“Answer the pay question before it becomes a ticket.”

The problem: every payroll cycle brings a wave of questions – employees asking why their pay changed, and payroll admins needing to double-check numbers before finalizing a run. Answering either means digging through screens and reports manually, which consumes time that should go into processing payroll.

The fix: the agent answers directly – pulls the record, compares pay periods, flags anomalies, and confirms whether a change (raise, tax update, deduction) actually applied. It helps payroll admins validate a run before it's finalized, and helps employees get an answer instantly instead of waiting.

How it works

	Why did my net pay drop this month compared to last month?
Your gross pay is unchanged, but your health insurance deduction increased by $42 following the new plan-year rates, and a one-time bonus from last month isn't recurring this period.
	Show me everyone whose gross pay changed by more than 10% this cycle
4 employees meet that threshold. 3 reflect approved raises; 1 shows an unprocessed retroactive adjustment worth reviewing before this run finalizes.

Business value

- Catches payroll anomalies before the run finalizes – preventing costly off-cycle corrections.
- Deflects repetitive “why did my pay change” tickets away from payroll admins.
- Confirms whether a specific change (tax update, raise, deduction) actually took effect, removing manual record-digging.

Configuration snapshot

Feasibility	Native Oracle agent template
Effort to stand up	Config only – roughly 1–2 weeks
What we do	Copy the template in AI Agent Studio, connect to payroll run data, assign to payroll admin and employee roles as appropriate
Pairs well with	Pay Analyst (payslip breakdowns) and Pay Policy Advisor (payroll policy Q&A) for full coverage

Example questions- it already handles: “Was John's overtime included in this run?” · “Did Sarah's tax withholding update actually get applied?” · “Pull up payroll details for employee #4521 for June.”

Agent 5 – Data Loader Advisor (HDL/HSDL)

“Stop depending on the one person who understands HDL.”

The problem: HDL and HSDL are Oracle's tools for bulk-loading HCM data (mass updates, migrations, conversions) – powerful, but genuinely hard to use correctly. Loads fail without a clear error, it's not always obvious whether to use HDL or HSDL, the file format is strict about structure and load order, and role-based access failures aren't obvious either. Most teams end up depending on one or two people who “actually understand HDL,” and everyone else avoids it.

The fix: integration specialists ask the agent directly instead of digging through Oracle docs, community forums, or waiting on a support ticket.

How it works

Should I use HDL or HSDL to update 500 employees' work locations?

HDL – HSDL is meant for smaller, spreadsheet-style updates. For 500 records, use HDL's flat-file bulk load, which also lets you re-run incrementally if some records fail.

Why is my job family load failing?

Likely cause: Job Family must load before Job Profile in the required load order. Check that your file doesn't load them together out of sequence.

Business value

- Removes dependency on one or two “HDL experts” – the whole integration team can self-serve.
- Faster than searching Oracle documentation or waiting on a support ticket.
- Lowers risk during large migrations, where a bad load can affect hundreds of employee records at once.

Configuration snapshot

Feasibility	Not a native Oracle agent – this is a custom build, unlike Agents 1–4
Effort to stand up	Several weeks, not days – budget accordingly
What we do	Build a custom agent in AI Agent Studio with a document tool loaded with our HDL/HSDL runbooks, business-object load-order reference, and role-access mapping
Optional upgrade	Add a tool that reads live HDL process status/errors so the agent can diagnose a failed load in real time, not just answer from static docs

Example questions it will handle: “What's the right load order if I'm loading Assignments and Work Relationships together?” · “What business objects does this role need access to for this load?”

How can I help you?

Should I use HDL or HSDL to update 500 employees' work locations?

For updating 500 employees' work locations, using HCM Spreadsheet Data Loader (HSDL) is generally recommended if the updates are to be performed by business users or if you want to benefit from the spreadsheet interface with features like date pickers, choice lists, and validation options. HSDL simplifies bulk updates and provides a user-friendly experience. However, if the update involves complex data migration or requires technical expertise, HCM Data Loader (HDL) would be more suitable as it is designed for bulk loading and automated integrations by technical professionals. In summary:

- Choose HSDL for ease of use, validation, and business user-friendly bulk updates.
- Choose HDL for complex data migration or technical integration tasks.

"What's the right load order if I'm loading Assignments and Work Relationships together?"

When loading Assignments and Work Relationships together in Oracle HCM Data Loader, you should load the Work Relationship component first, followed by the Assignment component. This ensures that the work relationship is created or updated before the assignment. Also, when loading Employment Terms and Assignment components together, make sure the EffectiveStartDate and EffectiveEndDate attributes are the same on both components. The EffectiveStartDate is the start date of the assignment change, and the EffectiveEndDate should be set to the end of time if the assignment record is the latest. Additionally, use the PrimaryFlag attribute to identify the primary work relationship and primary assignment, as a person can have only one primary work relationship at a time and only one primary assignment in each work relationship. Following this load order and guidelines will help maintain data integrity and consistency in your Oracle HCM Cloud application.

Agent 6 – Onboarding Journey + Onboarding Assistant

“A guided checklist, backed by an agent that actually knows our policies.”

The problem: new hires get lost navigating a pile of disconnected onboarding tasks, external links, and policy documents, and often don't complete compliance-critical steps (signing a contract, watching a safety video) in the right order or on time.

The fix: this is two Oracle capabilities working together – a Guided Journey that gives new hires a single visual checklist with contextual documents and videos delivered exactly when needed, and won't let them skip compliance-critical steps; plus an Onboarding Assistant agent embedded in that journey that answers personalized policy questions and proactively nudges people about pending items.

How it works

What is the medical insurance coverage in India?

For India-based new hires, coverage begins day one and includes the employee plus up to 4 dependents. Details and enrollment steps are in your Benefits task below.

Reminder: your I-9 verification document is due in 2 days – you haven't uploaded it yet.

Business value

- Guarantees compliance-critical steps (contracts, safety training) can't be skipped, reducing legal/compliance exposure.
- Personalized checklists by role, location, and contract type – no generic one-size-fits-all onboarding.
- Proactive nudges catch missing documents before they become a deadline problem, not after.
- Managers get their own policy advisor (Employment Lifecycle Policy Advisor) for hiring, onboarding, and offboarding questions.

Configuration snapshot

Feasibility	Native – three Oracle components working together (Guided Journey, Onboarding Assistant, Employment Lifecycle Policy Advisor)
Effort to stand up	Config plus policy-document curation – roughly 2–4 weeks depending on how many roles/locations we tailor journeys for
What we do	Build the Redwood guided journey checklist, enable the agent task type, upload our onboarding policy and compliance documents as the knowledge source
Ongoing maintenance	Keep uploaded policy documents current as onboarding requirements change per role/location

Example questions it already handles: “What documents do I need for visa sponsorship?” · “Who is my onboarding buddy?” · (Manager) “What's our policy on rehiring someone within 6 months?”
